The Ralph A. Dunn Public Service Award is presented to someone who has demonstrated a substantial, positive contribution to the citizens of Illinois by serving in government, public policy, and politics. In the 20 years Senator Luechtefeld has served in elected office, he has exemplified ethical conduct and civility in government, making a positive contribution to the state.

Luechtefeld, who began his career in the state Senate in 1995, has served as an assistant minority leader since 2003. He serves as minority spokesman on both the Education and Higher Education committees in the Senate. Prior to his legislative career, he was a teacher and coach at Okawville High School. He is a graduate of St. Louis University and holds a masters degree from Southern Illinois University Edwardsville.
